

I don't think Digital Television should require copyright protection because:

1. Most digital TV will be sent over public airwaves, which everyone should have free access to.

2. DVD recorders will become commonplace. Copy protecting digital TV will damage their usefulness.

3. TV stations put their logos in the bottom right corner of their broadcasts making the likelihood of selling copied programs unlikely.